He was placed under $100.000 bonds, and the Long Island Loan and Trust Company and the Hamilton Trust Company were made places of deposit. David A. Barnett, counsel for Seth L. Keeney, the president of the bank, made a statement in regard to the relations of the latter to the bank had all that Mr. Keeney succeeded President. bank. He said that Mr. Keeney succeeded President Hudson in 1888, and found the bank with $108,000 capital and $166,624 surplus. At the pres-$108,000 capital and $166,624 surplus. At the present time the capital is the same, and the surplus, according to the books, $96,507. In the five years there had been written off to profit and loss $55,585 95 of bad debts, which had accrued under the former management. The losses from bad debts under the present we accounted to less. under the present management amounted to less than $10,000. Under Mr. Hudson, the cashler, John than $10,000. Under Mr. Hudson, the cashier, John A. Vail, ran the business of the bank. He told Mr. Keeney, in regard to the accounts, that their condition was fully known to Mr. Hudson, and that they were all right.

In 1889 Mr. Keeney found that the accounts of Mr. Grening and Mr. Hassell, and the mining company which the latter was interested in, had been heavily overdrawn, and their notes had been discounted to an unwarranted degree. This had been done before Mr. Keeney was made president. He sent for Mr. Grening, who gave bonds and mortgages which fully secured his overdrafts, and it was which fully secured his overdrafts, and it was probable that the full amount would be made good from them. The bank took conveyances of the mining properties of Mr. Hassell in Colorado, the mining properties of Mr. Hassell in Colorado, and his other property. Three of the bank directors, Messrs. Keeney, Gill and Snedeker, advanced $195,000 to make the mining properties pay, and this money was spent before they came to the conclusion that the enterprise was hopeless. This money was their own, and they made no claim against the bank for it. When Mr. Keeney found out about the overdrafts he thought the capital of the bank too much impaired to go on with business, and called a meeting of the directors and told them that unless the capital was made good the bank must close. The eight directors each gave his note for $10,000, and the bank still holds them. This action was approved by the State Superintendent of Banking.

Superintendent of Banking.

Up to a year ago the bank did well, and the course adopted was justified, but after September, 1892, there were heavy withdrawals, and fully one-third of the deposits were taken out. The result was that in the recent financial stringency the strain was too great. Several days before the doors were closed the Bank of New-York called for additional security, and Cashier Vafi pledged twenty-five $1,000 bonds belonging to Mr. Keeney which were in the vaults for safekeeping. When Mr. Keeney learned that the Bank of New-York would no longer act for his bank, he made an effort to borrow upon his securities, but failed. effort to borrow upon his securities, but failed. His connection with the bank cost him about $30,000, including $55,000 advanced to work Hassell's mines, $10,000 given to make good the capital, $25,000 of his bonds sold by the Bank of New-York and applied to the debt of the Commercial Bank, and $10,000 in deposits. The State Superintendent of Banking would not let the bank resume unless the $tockholders paid in $150,000 in cash, and this could be a secured.

not be secured.

Cashier Vail admitted yesterday that he had taken $25,000 in bonds belonging to Mr. Keeney and the bank of New-York, but he said Mr. Keeney would get his money all right, has it was a legitimate claim against the bank. In regard to his relations to the bank, Mr. Vail said that he had assumed many responsibilities in his that he had assumed many responsibilities in his many years with the bank, but he thought he did all for the best.

Receiver Dykman said that it was a great pity that the bank had to close its doors, but it could not be helped in the existing condition of the money market. It was impossible to secure the sum re-muired to warrant the reopening of the bank. It would be some time before the depositors could be paid anything, on account of the difficulty of colpaid anything, on account of the bank held, so that it might be months before a percentage could

It is understood that the directors mean to see that all depositors are paid in full. Some of the de-positors have already sold their accounts for ready teash at a large discount. THE ATTACHMENTS TO BE PAID.

The Sheriff has received two attachments against the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway Company, of Duluth, one for $4,168 in favor of Comstock Brothers, on a bill of exchange made by McKinley, Charnley & Co. and accepted by the company, and the other for $7,981 in favor of Edward H. Blanc, for fuel delivered by the Pioneer Fuel Company, of Minneapolis. The railway com-pany has offices in this city at No. 46 Wall-st. It was said there that the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway Company had just been consolidated with the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines under the latter name, with Leonidas Merritt as president. Mr. Merritt said the consolidated mines and railway were valued at $150,000,000 actual property upon which up to Tuesday they used $250.000. erty, upon which up to Tuesday they owed $500,000.
They have assets in unpaid subscriptions, county aid bonds and money in hand at the present day, 200,000 in excess of the debts. The property is absolutely clear. The attachments will be paid in time. These are the only two, and were granted on the ground that the company is a foreign corporation.
